MR. RANDOLPH & THE HARTFORD CONVENTION.

"On no point in the world (says Tristam Shandy) was my father so eloquent as on that of door-hinges." This expression with a little alteration, may be applied to the defenders of our cabinet, for on no subject have they been so eloquent as on that of the Hartford convention. There is scarcely a term of abuse to be found in the large folio democratic dictionary of invective, that has not been selected and applied to the Hartford convention. With regard to the proceedings of this body, it must on the part of their enemies be confessed that whatever was done, was done in honest day light. If the objects which that convention contemplated to carry into effect, were of a criminal character, that criminality was fairly laid open to the inspection & to the abhorrence of the world. They fairly braved prosecution if they had offended against any law; and surely with such a luminous attorney general as Mr. Madison possesses, it cannot be questioned for a moment that this convention, if their actions were so criminal, would have been brought before a court of justice to answer for their crimes. When we further take into consideration the transcendent powers of eloquence, which this great law officer is known to possess, his deep and comprehensive knowledge of law, and that it was his paramount duty, his obligation of office, to have exercised his astonishing talents in the service of his country—we can but be astonished at the supineness and apathy manifested on that occasion. The democratic presses, it must be confessed, usurped the office, not only of public prosecutor, of judge and jury; but the office of executioner also All this was done, while the cabinet, that vigilant dragon appointed to guard the Hesperian fruit of our liberties, slumbered and snored soundly over his charge. The denunciators of the Hartford convention certainly implicated Mr. Madison and all the worthies of the cabinet, when they proclaimed the existence of so much criminality. They charged our administration virtually with beholding treason stalking abroad at noon-day, without even attempting to impede its course. All this was done while Mr. Madison was in the very same page eulogized to the heavens as the vigilant guardian of the people's rights, as a patriot whose days and nights were occupied in watching over the public welfare.

In opposition to this open deportment of the Hartford convention, let us place the following declaration of Mr. Randolph, made at the present session of congress on the floor of the house of representatives:

"The time has arrived when there is no longer any necessity for suppressing the fact, that the grand armory of Richmond, in Virginia, was built with an eye to putting down Mr. Adams' administration with the bayonet, if it could not be accomplished by other means."

This assertion is made by Mr. Randolph in the presence of the defenders of the cabinet, who were capable of contradicting him, if his statement was not correct. The democratic party were it seems to wait the result of another election to put down the administration of Adams, and if they were unsuccessful in that mode, they were to have bayonets in the Richmond armory ready for another trial. Mr. Randolph states that the grand armory was built with that view, so that our citizens might be provided in season with the means of carrying on a civil war to put down the administration of the man, who, for aught they knew, at that time might have been the choice of the people. Here civil war was in the last resort meditated and resolved on in case the object could not be obtained by any other means. We wonder what the sagacious attorney general of the United States thinks of this fact: we wonder what he would have said if this fact had been disclosed before his political apostacy was brought about; what he would have then thought of the guilt of his present friends and confederates? Here is civil war in the last event resolved on, and an armory built where the engines of death were to be deposited. Let the democrats now meet this question fairly, and shew any thing in the records of the Hartford convention equal to this. Fed. Rep.

Jerusalem.

The following description of modern Jerusalem is extracted from Chateaubriand's Travels in Palestine.

The houses of Jerusalem are heavy square masses, very low, without chimneys or windows; they have flat terraces or domes on the top, and look like prisons or sepulchres. The whole would appear to the eye one uninterrupted level, did not the steeples of the churches, the minarets of the mosques, the summits of a few cypresses, and the clumps of nopals, break the uniformity of the plan. On beholding these stone buildings, encompassed by a stony country, you are ready to inquire if they are not the confused monuments of a cemetery in the midst of a desert.

Enter the city, but nothing will you there find to make amends for the dullness of its exterior. You lose yourself among narrow unpaved streets, here going up hill, there down, from the inequality of the ground, and you walk among clouds of dust or loose stones. Canvass stretched from house to house increases the gloom of this labyrinth; bazars, roofed over, and fraught with infection, completely exclude the light from the desolate city. A few paltry shops expose nothing but wretchedness to view, and even these are frequently shut, from apprehension of the passage of a cadi. Not a creature is to be seen in the streets, not a creature at the gates, except now and then a peasant gliding through the gloom, concealing under his garments the fruits of his labour, lest he should be robbed of his hard earnings by the rapacious soldier. Aside, in a corner, the Arab butcher is slaughtering some animal suspended by the legs from a wall in ruins, from his haggard and ferocious look, and his bloody hands, you would rather suppose that he had been cutting the throat of a fellow creature than killing a lamb. The only noise heard from time to time in this deicide city is the galloping of the steed of the desert; it is the janissary who brings the head of the Bedouin, or returns from plundering the unhappy, Fellah.

Amid this extraordinary desolation, you must pause a moment to contemplate two circumstances still more extraordinary.—Among the ruins of Jerusalem two classes of independent people find in their religion sufficient fortitude to enable them to surmount such complicated horrors and wretchedness.—Here reside communities of Christian monks, whom nothing can compel to forsake the tomb of Christ, neither plunder, nor personal ill treatment, nor menaces of death itself. Night and day they chaunt their hymns aronnd the Holy Sepulchre. Stripped in the morning by a Turkish governor, they are found at night at the foot of Calvary, in prayer, on the spot where Christ suffered for the salvation of mankind. Their brows are serene, their lips wear an incessant smile. They receive the stranger with joy. Without power, without soldiers, they protect whole villages against iniquity. Driven by the cudgel and the sabre, women, children, flocks, and herds, seek refuge in the cloisters of these recluses. What prevents the armed oppressor from pursuing his prey, and overthrowing such feeble ramparts? The charity of the monks: they deprive themselves of the last resources of life to ransom their suppliants. Turks, Arabs, Greeks, christian schismatics, all throw themselves under the protection of a few indigent religious, who are incapable of defending themselves. Here we cannot forbear acknowledging with Bossuet, "that hands raised towards heaven dispersed more battalions than hands armed with javelins."

While the new Jerusalem thus rises from the desert, resplendent in brightness, cast your eyes between the temple and mount Sion: behold another petty tribe cut off from the rest of the inhabitants of this city. The particular objects of every species of degradation, these people bow their heads without murmuring; they endure every kind of insult without demanding justice; they sink beneath repeated blows without sighing; if their head be required, they present it to the scimetar. On the death of any member of this proscribed community, his companion goes at night and inters him by stealth in the valley of Jehoshaphat in the shadow of Solomon's temple. Enter the abodes of these people, you will find them, amidst the most abject wretchedness, instructing their children to read a mysterious book, which they in their turn will teach their offspring to read. What they did five thousand years ago, these people still continue to do. Seventeen times have they witnessed the destruction of Jerusalem, yet nothing can discourage them, nothing can prevent them from turning their faces towards Sion. To see the Jews scattered over the whole world, according to the word of God, must doubtless excite surprise: but to be struck with supernatural astonishment, you must view them at Jerusalem; you must behold these rightful masters of Judea living as slaves and strangers in their own country; you must behold them expecting, under all oppressions a king who is to deliver them. Crushed by the cross that condemns them and is planted on their heads, skulking near the temple, of which not one stone is left upon another, they continue in their deplorable infatuation. The Persians, the Greeks, the Romans, are swept from the earth; and a petty tribe, whose origin preceded that of those great nations still exists unmixed among the ruins of its native land. If any thing among nations wears the character of a miracle, that character, in my opinion, is here legibly impressed. What can appear more wonderful, even to the philosopher, than this spectacle of ancient and modern Jerusalem at the foot of Calvary? The former, overwhelmed with affliction at the sight of the sepulchre of the risen Jesus; the latter, exulting before the only tomb which will have no deposite to render up at the consummation of ages.

It is a remarkable historical fact, that Algiers was the first town that experienced the dreaful effects of bombardment from ships of war: In the infancy of Louis the XIVth's naval power, the Barbary corsairs infested the Mediterranean, and drew on them the vengeance of that monarch. It was on that occasion that a young man named Barnard Renaud, who had never served on sea, and whose genius the great Colbert had drawn from obscurity, proposed to the council the construction of bomb vessels to act against Algiers. The proposition was at first ridiculed; but the king encouraged the young engineer, and preparation being made, he was sent out with the celelebrated Du Quesne, to superintend the performance of his own suggestion. The enterprise completely succeeded; Renaud was honoured for his destructive invention, and the Algerines sent deputies to Versailles to solicit pardon and peace.

WINGED GUDGEONS.

To the editor of the Federal Gazette.

SIR,

You may render an important service to the millers in the state of Ohio, and the other western states, by giving them timely notice, that Michael Withers has set out on a journey to the west, with intent to claim compensation from those who use WINGED GUDGEONS, he having obtained a patent on pretence of being the inventor, although, it is well known, they were in use long before the date of his patent. The western millers should know that the claim of Mr. Withers is well known HERE, to be without just foundation, and is constantly refused.

A Country Miller.

ALBANY, Dec. 31.

INSTRUCTION OF THE DEAF AND DUMB.

We observe by an advertisement in the National Advocate, that a school is opened in N. York, by Mr. Braidwood, in which the deaf and dumb are not only taught to talk by signs, but to speak and read distinctly, (understanding by the motion of the lips, the conversation of others) they are also instructed in arithmetic, geography and the use of the globes, and every other branch of useful education.

The system originated with the abbe L'Eppe, but the improvement of articulation was made by the late Thos. Braidwood, of Edingburgh and London. As an evidence of the superior advantages of the Scotch system, it is stated that the earl of Seaforth, although deaf and unable to articulate, was so perfectly instructed by Mr. Braidwood, that he performed the duties of the governor of Barbadoes, with satisfaction to every one for several years.

The foundation for the statue of King Charles the XII, to be erected at the expence of the Crown Prince, is now ready. The metal is taken from the captured cannon, of which 84 lay in the artillery yard of Sweden.

ANECDOTE OF WASHINGTON

In debate yesterday in the House of Delegates, on a bill relative to a Map of the State, in which something was said of military roads, Mr. Mercer (L) related and applied an anecdote of Gen. Washington, which he had received from a Member of the Convention that formed the Constitution of the U. S.—The subject of power to be given the new congress, relative to a standing army, was on the tapis. A member made a motion that Congress should be restricted to a standing army not exceeding five thousand at any one time. Gen. Washington, who, being chairman, could not offer a motion, whispered to a member from Maryland, to amend the motion, by providing that no foreign enemy should invade the United States at any one time, with more than three hundred troops.

SAVANNA, (Geo.) Dec. 24.

ENGLISH EMBASSY TO CHINA.

The Prince of Wales Island Gazette of June 22, states, that Lord Amherst the Ambassador to China, was expected to touch there shortly on his way to Canton. The object of this diplomatic mission the English take some pains to conceal—were credit due the ministerial papers nothing farther would seem to be contemplated by it, than a mere interchange of civilities with the imperial sovereign of China; but scanty as are the means of obtaining correct information with regard to the internal state of that country, enough has transpired to convince us, that the ancient edifice of Chinese policy is crumbling into ruins—its very basis quaking to the undulations of anarchy and rebellion

Knowing the weakness of the Chinese marine, the Malayan pirates have congregated at the Ladrone Islands, and poured upon the defenceless, shores of southern China; with the mal-contents of which a good understanding exists, and arms and ammunition are supplied them. The coasting trade thus intercepted, and a spirit of insurrection excited, the emperor has been reduced to the necessity of supplicating, it is said the English to suppress these marauders. This service, no doubt, will be performed only on the condition of ceding a permanent settlement in some part of his dominion, eligible for the furtherance of that power's pirate purposes; and, pressed as he is by foreign and domestic enemies, no remedy is left him but that of sacrificing the ancient and restrictive policy of his country to the exigences of the times.

IMPROVED STEAM ENGINE

An ingenious young gentleman of this city, has favored us with the following note of his improvement:

"I have succeeded in decomposing steam, by a process which renders it as economical in its application to a steam engine, as in a much greater degree than steam applied to an engine, of the most approved construction, there is a great saving of fuel: the engine will take less room than a steam engine now occupies, and the first is considerable less. By this process a perfect and instantaneous vacuum is obtained, and the engine will have a complete rotatory motion without a fly wheel. The patent right of this process is secured in England and in this country."

PITTSBURGH.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 21, 1817.

Extract of a letter to the editor, from a member of the state legislature, dated

"HARRISBURGH, Jan. 11, 1817.

"The resolution offered some time ago, by Dr. Leib, to reduce the salaries of certain officers of government, was decided in the negative, on the 9th inst. after a warm debate.

"The business before the legislature, is mostly of a local nature....A supplement to the act incorporating the city of Pittsburgh, passed a second reading yesterday in the house of representatives, after considerable opposition. It gives authority to the mayor's court, to prosecute their own recognizances to final recovery, gives the aldermen of the city, the same powers that justices of the peace have in the county—authorises the clerk of the mayor's court to take recognizances in vacation, the same as he could do during the sitting of the court—the costs on indictments, to be paid out of the county treasury, in place of the city treasury—authorises the recorder to issue writs of habeas corpus, and give like relief as the judges of the courts of common pleas can do—allows the recorder 600 dolls. a year, to be paid out of the state treasury. We hope the bill will meet with no further opposition. It is expected that the legislature will authorise additional shares to be subscribed to the Harrisburgh and Pittsburgh Turnpike Road Company, and pay the shares heretofore subscribed in advance. A representation to our members of congress is preparing, urging them to oppose the military road from Washington to Sandusky, and to use their endeavors to have the road located, so as to make Uniontown, Pittsburgh and Waterford, points of said road; as an inducement, we believe the legislature will incorporate companies, and grant a certain sum towards this road, provided congress will aid in the same.

"The committee on Manufactures, have agreed to report a bill, granting to George Cochran, woolen manufacturer at the falls of Beaver, a sum of money, without interest, in aid of his establishment. A bill has passed the third reading, making an alteration respecting issuing of certioraries—the Prothonotary has the power of taking the oath, and allowing the writ, without application to a Judge. A bill is reported authorising the commissioners of Allegheny county, to sell the old jail and lot, and purchase another. Also, a bill, incorporating the Iron and Nail Factory company in the city of Pittsburgh.

"To morrow the nomination of State Treasurer takes place, and the day following the election; I hear of no opposition to William Findley."

BANK NOTES.

The immense flood of the paper of the late established unlawful Banks, which has overwhelmned this place within a short period, has at length produced the proper course for its total suppression. We understand that the Banks in this city have come to the resolution of stopping the accommodation of any person who has or will become a borrower at those illegal institutions, or who receive their paper for the purpose of throwing it into circulation. These measures together with a proper concurrence of the mercantile and trading part of this place, (which will no doubt be the case;) will in a short time rid us of this trash. This city has too long suffered its character and respectability to be lessened by the facility with which its citizens have afforded to its circulation.

IMPORTANT PROJECT.

A company in the state of New-York, incorporated "for the purpose of effecting a boat navigation between the Seneca Lake and the Susquehanna river," have laid a memorial before the government of Pennsylvania, soliciting its aid and patronage in a work so deeply affecting the interests of the latter state. The completion of this work, with that now going on between Seneca and Ontario, would open a boat navigation from the great lakes to the Chesapeake!

The governor of N. Carolina, under the authority of the state, has contracted with Signior Canova, of Rome, for a statue of Washington, to cost ten thousand dollars.

Expulsion of a Senator.—It is stated in the Charleston Courier, that Gen. John Roberts, Senator in the Legislature of North Carolina, from Carteret County, has been expelled from the Senate, for having, as paymaster of the militia in several counties of that State, procured and converted to his own use, the public monies of the state, by means of forged and fraudulent vouchers.

Extract to the Editors of the Baltimore Patriot dated,

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.

A perfect political calm seems to prevail in this capital. Even busy rumor, with her thousand tongues, furnishes no materials for the speculative genius of the politician or quid nunc. It is to be hoped that in a few days, congressional proceedings will assume an interesting aspect, and awaken the public mind from that apathy into which it has fallen, and which is so conducive to the prudent and beneficial exercise of the functions of government.

"The only novelty to be seen here, is the pomp and parade, the glittering equipages, of an unusual number of foreign embassadors.—Mr. Bagot, the British envoy, is very plain and sociable in his manners, of an amiable character, appears to be easily pleased, and consequently very much esteemed in this city."

PRINCE SAUNDERS, an African, late of this town, but now in the service of Christophe, King of Hayti, has recently compiled and published in London a work entitled Haytian Papers, with a preface by himself. To the work is prefixed a portrait of the editor, which is an excellent likeness. The publication, consisting principally of official papers, which serve as a tolerable history of the kingdom, is designed to vindicate the claims of Hayti to be ranked among civilized and enlightened states. It is quite creditable to the authors of the individual papers, and we think few persons will examine the volume without some surprise at the degree of talents and intelligence that it discovers.—There is a copy of the work in the Boston Athenæum, presented by the editor.

Bos. D. Adv.

Letters from Hayti mention, that it is the intention of Christophe to change the religion of his kingdom from the Roman Catholic, to the Episcopal communion—and Mr. Prince Saunders, who has the superintendance of an academy there, is adopting measures for carrying this design into execution.——Boston Cent.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser....Jan. 8

The influence of peace in Europe, is seen in the low price of ammunition—brig Hope, lately arrived from Amsterdam, was ballasted with SHOT and SHELLS, which she procured at a very low price, to the amount of 120 tons. They are a part of the stock accumulated under the French government. It would seem that the Dutch do not expect to have any further occasion to use their artillery.

The United States' bank has commenced issuing notes. They are elegant specimens of engraving. The quality of the paper is of a very superior kind, and will defy the united efforts of counterfeiters, to imitate.——Berks Journal.

QUEBEC, Dec. 26.

EXTRAORDINARY CASE OF THE DROPSY.

On Friday last, Dr. Holmes had recourse to tapping a female patient in this city, troubled with this afflicting malady, when not less than thirty-eight quarts of water were taken from her. Such a discharge is considered as a very rare occurrence. She is doing as well as can be expected.

By the Gazette of Cadiz, it appears that a Moorish corsair had captured a Russian vessel loaded with salt, bound from Alicant; and a Prussian vessel with a cargo of Marble, bound to Lisbon; both have been carried into a Moorish port.—The chastisement inflicted by lord Exmouth on these pirates, appears not to have deterred them from their piratical course.

BEAUTY IN SMILES.

A SONG.

Oh! weep not—sweet maid, tho' the bright tear of Beauty.
To kindred emotion each feeling beguiles;
The softness of sorrow, no magic can borrow,
To vie with the splendor of Beauty in Smiles.

Man roves thro' creation a wandering stranger,
A dupe to its follies, a slave to its toils;
But bright o'er the billows of doubt and of danger,
The rainbow of promise is Beauty in Smiles.

As the rays of the sun, o'er the bosom of Nature,
Renew ev'ry flow'r which the tempest despoils;
So joy's faded blossom in man's aching bosom,
Revives in the sunshine of Beauty in Smiles

The crown of the hero, the star of the rover,
The hope that inspires, and the spell that beguiles;
The song of the poet, the dream of the lover,
The infidel's heaven—is Beauty in Smiles.

A CARD.

MR. CROSS respectfully informs the citzens of Pittsburgh and its vicinity, that on wednesday evening next, the 22d inst. at Mr. Howard's large room, over O'Brien & Dyott's store, Wood, between Front and Second Streets, he will present a number of ORATORICAL RECITATIONS, original, and selected from the master-writers of our language.

Beside the inculcation (to the extent of the Orator's powers) of correct elocution and natural eloquence, these recitations are based on sound moral principle, practical patriotism, benficial satire and chaste amusement.

Having been flattered with the plaudits of numerous and respectable audiences of both sexes, he hopes he will on wednesday evening be honored with the presence of the Ladies & Gentlemen of PITTSBURGH

The room will be rendered comfortable by several fires, and the front seats reserved for the Ladies.

Interesting Discovery.

To those who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with

CANCERS.

AND to those whose feelings of humanity excite them to inquire and direct where they may obtain a perfect cure for that malady, in the most safe and effectual way:

Doctor Griggs,

No. 277, North Second Street, Philadelphia,

Confident that his remedy is superior to all others that have ever been in practice, thinks it his duty to make it known to the public, that he has succeeded in effectually curing near one hundred persons in this city, of that most dreadful of all maladies, the CANCER, within the last two years; many of whom had despaired of ever obtaining a cure; of some whom had been attended in the Alms House and Hospital of this place, without success, and now are effectually cured.

By the afflicted's humble servant,

Daniel Griggs.

Ten Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY on Sunday the 10th of November last from the subscriber, SAMUEL M'BRIDE, an indented apprentice to the tailoring business; had two years to serve. Had on when he went off, a green coatee, grey pantaloons and vest—is about 16 years of age, five feet six inches high, light hair freshly coulored. His father resides in this city, a brick layer by trade. As he has come off without any cause whatever I forwarn all persons from harboring him as I am determined to prosecute as the law directs. Ten dollars will be given for information where he may be found, or twenty dollars on securing him so as the subscriber may obtain him.

JOHN BAIRD, Tailor, Diamond.

N. B. He took with him his indentures and has been seen on his way to Nashville in company with his sister Mrs. Bell, who was going to her husband, who has been in Nashville for some time.

The following valuable

36 ACRES of ground on Coal hill below the mouth of Sawmill run. From this ground there is a beautiful view of the city.

108 acres, three miles from Greensburgh. This is good land covered with timber, which on account of being so near town makes it more valuable than if clear.

243 acres on the left bank of the Ohio river, sixteen miles down from the city. On this tract there is about fifty acres of bottom on the river, cleared and wrought by a tenant. The rest is timber land, nearly all capable of being cleared and wrought, and suitable for pasture ground.

200 acres of very rich unimproved land, within eight miles of Meadville.

An undivided fourth part of about seven hundred acres in the state of Kentucky. This is very valuable being the seat of the town of Greensburg; the county town of Green county, and situate on the bank of Green river; which is navigable from many miles above the town to the Ohio.

I will sell also a four years lease of a mill for driving grindstones. This is situated at the mouth of Sawmill run, one mile from town.
